EDITORS NOTE

We need a New Model Parliament to get things done - Mosley said the geographic franchise is 100 years out of date and should be scrapped. Instead of voting for M.P.s on a local franchise he advocated the occupational or vocational franchise. Under this system everyone who worked in healthcare would choose from healthcare candidates, teachers for teaching candidates, transport workers for transport candidates, retail workers for retail candidates etc. In this way we would create a parliament of experts - elected by experts.

Multiculturalism - Mosley believed that multiculturalism is not a viable basis for society - it robs people of all ethnic backgrounds of their heritage causing a culture clash and a lack of social cohesion. Britain and Europe cannot become welfare centres for all the economic migrants of the world and the open door policy must end. The most valuable foreign aid we can give the Third World is the incentivised voluntary return of migrants to build prosperity in their countries of origin using the education and work skills they have acquired whilst here.

A MESSAGE TO THE UK GOVERNMENT

I bought a bird feeder which I hung on my back porch and filled it with seed. What a beauty of a bird feeder it was, as I filled it lovingly with seed. Within a week I had hundreds of birds taking advantage of the continuous flow of free and easily accessible food. However, the birds started building nests in the boards of the patio, above the table, and next to the barbecue. Then came the bird droppings. It was everywhere, on the patio tiles, the chairs, the table, everywhere !

Then some of the birds turned mean. They would dive bomb me and try to peck me even though I had fed them out of my own pocket. Then other birds became more boisterous and loud they sat on the feeder and squawked and screamed at all hours of the day and night as if they were demanding that I fill it when it got low on food. After a while, I couldn't even sit on my own back porch anymore. So, I took down the bird feeder and within three days the birds were gone. I cleaned up their mess and took down the many nests they had built all over the patio. Before I knew it, the back yard was like it used to be, quiet and serene and no one demanding their rights to a free meal. This reminds me so much of how things are in this country right now ! The UK gives out free food, subsidized housing, free medical care and free education etc. Then the illegals came by the tens of thousands. Suddenly our taxes went up to pay for all these free services, houses were now housing 5 families. You have to wait approx 6 hours to be seen by an emergency department doctor; Your child's primary grade class is behind other schools because over half the class does not speak your language. Squawking and screaming in the streets, demanding more rights and free liberties. Just my opinion, but maybe it's time for our government to take down the bird feeder. If you agree, pass it on; if not, just continue cleaning up the mess. Overcrowding breeds criminality.. fact

FACTS AND LIES

Here are 10 facts about one of Britain's most divisive political figures in the 20th century. .

1. He had a privileged upbringing

Born the oldest son of a baronet in Mayfair, London, young Oswald's childhood was predominantly spent at Apedale Hall before he was sent to finish his studies at Winchester College.

In 1914, Mosley started at Sandhurst, but was expelled 6 months later for his behaviour towards another student. His prospects were somewhat salvaged by the outbreak of war in August of the same year. He was commissioned into the Queen's Lancers and fought on the Western Front.

An injury saw him discharged from active service after the Battle of Loos and Mosley spent the majority of the war worked in desk jobs at the Foreign Office and Ministry of Munitions.

2. He became one of Britain's youngest MPs

Aged just 21 and with little experience or higher education, Mosley decided to go into politics, running as the Conservative candidate for Harrow in the 1918 general election. He was elected with little opposition and became the youngest member of the House of Commons to take his seat.

Immense self-confidence and eloquence quickly established him as a force to be reckoned with in the Commons. He opposed Conservative policy in Ireland and successfully ran as an Independent MP in 1922 and 1923.

3. He was notoriously unfaithful

Mosley married Lady Cynthia Curzon in 1920, a match which the more cynical believed was to help Mosley's advancement within the Conservative Party. Their marriage was a major social event, with King George V and Queen Mary in attendance.

Mosley's attentions quickly wandered, taking Cynthia's two sisters Alexandra and Irene, as well as her stepmother Grace, Marchioness Curzon, as his mistresses at various points. Cynthia died from peritonitis in 1933 after becoming gradually more politically estranged from her fanatical husband.

4. He briefly served as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster

In 1924, Mosley switched alliances once again, joining the Labour Party and campaigning hard against Neville Chamberlain in the seat of Birmingham Ladywood, losing by only 77 votes. He was eventually returned to parliament by a by-election in 1926 as the MP for Smethwick.

Following Labour's win in 1929, Mosley was appointed as the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster by Ramsay MacDonald. His proposals to solve unemployment, which included nationalisation of main industries and the implementation of a public works programme, were viewed as too radical.

Disillusioned by Labour, who he viewed as too slow to adapt, Mosley founded his own political party: the New Party. Initially, it gained a good deal of support from cross-spectrum figures, but as the Depression took hold in 1931, it became increasingly radical and authoritarian, quickly losing the burgeoning support it had.

5. He founded the British Union of Fascists in 1932

Having visited Mussolini's Italy, Mosley returned convinced of the merits of fascism and sure that it could advance Britain's economic prospects. The Daily Mail and The Daily Mirror were some of the organisation's major supporters and they claimed to have a membership base of 50,000 supporters.

Mosley's excellent oratory skills and charisma quickly developed him a keen following, and rallies he held often had extremely high turnouts. However, his bodyguards, also known as the Fascist Defence Force (but best known as Blackshirts) developed a reputation for violence and brutality, damaging the New Party's reputation.

6. Violence escalated into the Battle of Cable Street

Anti-Semitism was rife amongst Mosley's fascists, and he continued to spew anti-Semitism at every opportunity. As violence against Jewish communities worsened in Nazi Germany, support waned even further in Britain. Previous supporters of the BUF chose to distance themselves from Mosley.

In October 1936, Mosley and the BUF marched through predominantly Jewish areas of the East End. A petition to prevent them marching gained 100,000 signatures, but the government's response was simply to provide a police escort for the marchers.

Anti-fascists laid roadblocks and tried to stop the march taking place, but to no avail. Violence clashes between marchers and protesters transformed the event into a major clash which came to be known as the Battle of Cable Street.

Concern over similar events occurring in the future was so great the the government published the Public Order Act (1936) which prevented the wearing of political uniforms and required organisers of large demonstrations to obtain police permission.

7. His second marriage had Adolf Hitler as guest of honour

In 1936, Mosley married his former mistress Diana Guinness (nee Mitford) in secret at the Berlin home of Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister. Hitler himself was present for the ceremony and became a friend of the couple.

Diana was just as committed to fascism as her husband, if not more so, and the pair were interned for most of the duration of the Second World War, firstly at Holloway Prison and later under house arrest.

8. He remained unrepentant after the Second World War

Many historians consider Mosley to be one of the earliest champions of

TEN LIES

Holocaust denial. He claimed photos of the camps were doctored, that ovens were used to burn bodies from typhus outbreaks rather than those murdered in gas chambers and that Hitler knew nothing about the Holocaust.

Mosley's beliefs in fascism did not waver following the war: he continued to advocate for apartheid (this time in Africa) and although he found some supporters in Britain, he largely relocated to Ireland as he found less disruption there.

9. He tried to run as an MP again - twice

Despite the post-war political climate, Mosley ran again as an MP not once, but twice, in 1959 for Kensington North and in 1966 for Shoreditch and Finsbury, in both cases receiving a minimal share of the vote. His policies, which included the prohibition of mixed race marriages and the forced repatriation of Caribbean immigrants, met with little enthusiasm from his potential constituents. After his second defeat, he retired to France to write his autobiography, 'My Life'.

10. He died in France in 1980

The Mosleys had long kept houses in Ireland, England and Paris. After years of ill-health, Mosley spent his final years suffering from Parkinson's disease. He died at home in Orsay, just outside of Paris in 1980.

Despite his reputation, the family reported they received no abusive messages, only words of condolence on Mosley's death.

1. The people of East London rose up and defeated Oswald Mosley at the Battle of Cable Street.

The Battle of Cable Street wasn't fought between Blackshirts and the people of East London. It was fought between the police and communists imported from all over Britain. Ten days after Cable Street the Blackshirts marched to Limehouse in East London where Mosley spoke to over 100,000 people amid scenes of considerable enthusiasm. In the local elections 6 months later, nearly 25% of the people of East London voted for Oswald Mosley which was an astonishing result considering that the vote was restricted to house owners. In the 1930s only heads of households had the right to vote in local elections - the young, the unemployed, and most women did not get a vote.

2. Oswald Mosley and his supporters were anti-Semitic.

Oswald Mosley never criticised anybody for what they were born. But he didn't believe that Jews were the only people in the world immune from criticism. Oswald Mosley criticised some Jews for what they did, not all Jews for what they were. That's why Jews like John Beckett (British Union Director of Publications), Bill Leaper (Editor of the Blackshirt) and Harold Soref (later Tory M.P. for Ormskirk), and the Jewish boxer Kid Lewis had no problem supporting him.

3. Members of British Union attacked Jews and Communists.

The British Union Regulations forbade members to carry weapons or engage in unprovoked attacks on opponents, regardless of their race or political allegiance, on pain of instant dismissal. These Regulations were always strictly enforced. No such embargo appears to have existed among British Union's Communist and Jewish opponents. For example, both Claude Cockburn and Jacob 'Jack the Spot' Comacho boast in their memoirs about the weapons, which included razors, axes, knives, and iron bars, that some Jews / Communists used to assault men and women members of British Union.

4. People who joined Oswald Mosley were violent thugs.

Among the people who joined Mosley were Henry Williamson, who wrote 'Tarka the Otter'; Jorian Jenks, the pioneer of organic farming; Spike Milligan, the comedian; Donald Marendaz, the racing driver; and Dennis Lucan, DFM, the famous RAF Dambuster. Members who served as speakers at outdoor meetings or sold party newspapers on street corners were often subject to razor attack by Communists following their party's instruction to "Clear the Blackshirts off the streets!" Therefore active members had to become proficient at self-defence or face horrific injuries. Although they never started fights they certainly knew how to finish them.

5. Oswald Mosley and his British Union were pro-German 'Fifth Columnists'.

Oswald Mosley was pro-British not pro-German. He was against fighting a War in which 60-million people died unless Great Britain or its Commonwealth were attacked. But when War was declared he instructed all members in the Armed Services to strictly obey their orders and all other supporters to fight to the death if invaded to drive the foreigners from our shores. Nobody who was a member of his party when War was declared was ever charged or convicted of treason. But many members who obeyed Mosley's call died fighting for their country.

6. Oswald Mosley and his supporters hated Black people.

Oswald Mosley was against immigration, not immigrants. He believed multi-racism undermined cultural cohesion in both communities and was driven by Big Business wanting to exploit immigrants as cheap labour. Mosley produced constructive proposals to give everybody a fair deal in their country of origin. After the War he founded the 'Associate Movement' for Black immigrants who supported his ideas. It was run by an African Airline Pilot and an Indian Solicitor.

7. Oswald Mosley was financed by the Nazis.

After the War, Oswald Mosley challenged the Labour Government to go through the British Union account books and bank transactions and find any evidence of donations by foreign governments. The Labour Government, which hated Mosley, produced no such evidence that he had been financed by Germany, Italy or any other country. Subsequent research by historians, journalists, and academics have also failed to produce a single piece of evidence to support the claim that Oswald Mosley or his political movement received finance from foreign countries. The fact was - British Union was financed by donations from thousands of patriotic British people who believed their fellow countrymen and women deserved better than long-term unemployment, hunger and war. There is however clear evidence that the British Communist Party, the Labour Party, and the Conservative Party have all in the past received donations from overseas sources.

8. Oswald Mosley's Blackshirts wouldn't fight for Britain in World War Two.

The first two casualties of WW2 were RAF Gunners George Brocking and Ken Day who died on the second day of war attacking the German fleet. They were both members of Mosley's British Union. The very first of the armada of 'Little Ships' to arrive at Dunkirk in May 1940 to rescue British troops from the beaches was sailed over by Eric Piercy and Colin Dick. They were both members of Oswald Mosley's British Union.

9. Oswald Mosley and British Union were against trade unions.

Far from being against trade unions, Mosley wanted trade unionists to become majority stakeholders in the companies that employed them. Under the Corporate State that British Union proposed, working people would share in the ownership and running of the companies they worked for. All profits would be shared fairly between workforce and managers - not among absentee shareholders. Instead of starting strikes which solve nothing, trade unionists would take responsibility for ensuring companies were run more efficiently and profitably.

10. British Union members broke up the meetings of political opponents.

Whilst many examples are recorded where Mosley's enemies tried to break up his meetings to stop audiences from hearing him speak, there are no known reports in newspapers at the time indicating that British Union members retaliated by breaking up opponents' meetings. All the famous political disorders during the period that the Blackshirts were active - Cable Street, Olympia, Holbeck Moor and Liverpool (where Mosley was knocked unconscious by a brick) - involved attacks on Mosley meetings and not attacks on Mosley's opponents meetings.

How do you conquer a country that is far superior to your country, both economically and militarily?

Easy, take away the uniforms and the weapons of your military, then send them in waves to invade the target country. Use the ever increasing "white guilt" to make the world see the target as evil and racist if that country seals the border and doesn't let these military turned migrants, into the target country.

As I write this, a caravan of "migrants" is on the way to the American border. They are so confident that nobody will stop them, and anyone that makes the suggestion is immediately branded a racist, xenophobic bigot. Not by the migrants alone, but by the entire liberal leftists currently controlling America. At this point, the number of illegal border jumpers is somewhere between 20 and 30 MILLION people! Imagine if they wore uniforms and carried guns, would politicians have backed down from the imminent invasion of armed uniformed military personnel? Obviously not. But take off the uniform and drop the guns, and it's simple to just walk across the border and get free stuff from the American people. It starts with a smart phone today. Then a plane ticket to any city the invader chooses. Once there, they can start stealing more benefits. Free education for their kids, free health care, free foodstamps, government subsidized housing, the list goes on. They are being given the privilege of driving our streets, even though they can't read the signs. They are given state issued ID's, with almost no paperwork proving identity. An American couldn't get a license to drive with this level of proof of identity. Especially if they are white and male. It's disgusting what these people are stealing. They literally take taxpayers money, then send it to their relatives via remittances, so they can come invade America too. And these countries love that these people are gone. It takes pressure of the government to provide services for these people, so let America take that burden. They also send so much America money back to their country, it is free money inflating their shitty economy! It's also great for corrupt officials that always take their cut of free US dollars flowing in.

Now this didn't go unnoticed by african muslims. They realized that this same model would work for europe as well. So they began sending their troops, without guns of course, to europe via shitty boats. These boats garnered pity from the leftist media, and when Italy and Greece tried to halt these invaders, the leftist media went straight to work.

Racists! Xenophobes! Anti-muslem bigots! You accept these people, and since they come with empty pockets, you house them and provided food and money! Nevermind that your own indigenous citizens don't receive such great treatment and care, and they shouldn't, their evil white people!

This has spread across most of europe. The more muslem an area becomes, the worse it gets for the indigenous people! Paris has more than its share of angry, do nothing demand everything muslems, turning the place into a shithole. There are areas already having muslem rules, women must be covered head to toe, no open alcohol either. Nevermind if your white indigenous french living by the laws of the french government, those laws are secondary to the muslim sharia laws. The media in these countries does not report about this, because they know it's mostly their fault.

The same crap is going on across europe, and the more socialist the country is, the worse the invasion is. I have seen videos of where Wimbledon is held, and it looks like a market in syria! It's absolutely revolting to see!

These countries are playing the long game as well. You will notice that these are not true migrants, not even close. A true migrant usually leaves oppression, they hate where they come from and desire to become American, or whatever country they have fled too. They want to learn the local language and customs, and leave much of their own country/customs behind.

These invaders are the exact opposite. They love where they came from and fly that flag with pride and defiance! They don't care about our language or customs, they bring theirs with them. So if that means raising fighting clocks in the backyard, don't complain you RACIST, get ear plugs and shut up!

Again, the long game. It might take 100 years of this trickle invasion, but eventually they will outnumber us. For the first time in decades, the white race no longer makes up more than half the US population, and that number is sinking fast.

Another huge difference between the indigenous people and the invaders, are kids. Most white people are having small families, if they marry at all. But the invaders are pumping out babies like Krispy Kreme pumps out donuts! When everything is paid for and you don't have to work, you have lots of time to pump out kids. You don't even have to father them, make the government do that for you.

It's disgusting that we are allowing this to happen. And it's disgusting that the left only cares about power, and they absolutely believe these invaders will vote for their candidates. They have sold their own country down the river, and couldn't care less about the damage being done.

In America, many states enacted motor-voter laws. Anyone getting an ID card or license is automatically registered to vote, no questions asked. So illegals are filling up the voter roles and vote for whoever promises the most free stuff, that's liberal democrats! Literally buying votes with my money!

Now I pity europe, you guys gave away the ability to fight back against invaders and a rogue government, you will regret that decision one day, possibly soon. In America, we have the ability to resist a rogue government and the invasion. The liberal democrats are playing a very dangerous game. If they go to far, and the government begins working against the American people, or the left decides to take our guns to rule over us, they will regret that decision very much. We will fight back! I thank my lucky stars everyday that our founders put so much importance on freedom of speech, the number one right all men have, and the freedom to defend ourselves with a firearm, the number two right recognized by these great leaders! The left is again talking about confiscation of firearms, I say good luck with that. If they really go that direction, invest in body bag manufacturers and funeral homes, because they are going to be very busy! Same goes for firearms and ammunition manufacturers.

IS THE TRUTH ABOUT CHURCHILL COMING OUT?

In the decades after World War Two, a lot of official documents were still classified and as long as Churchill was alive, saying something bad about him was simply “not done” as he was a hero.

As time went by, more and more documents became available showing he could be a real pain in the arse who drove the people around him to despair.

We also see Churchill was the driving force behind a lot of bad decisions made by the British during the War.

Pressing for the Special Operations Executive to “set Europe ablaze” also included the indiscriminate killing of innocent civilians and the brutal execution of Germans and local collaborators.

Churchill knew that the more brutal the SOE agents worked, the more the Germans would retaliate and the more people start to hate them and support the Resistance Movements. But this, for example, meant deliberately provoking the Germans into taking hostages and killing them.

Churchill also advocated area bombing to “break German morale”. In March 1944 he wanted to use biological attacks against German cities to “kill at least 2 million civilians”. The service Chiefs refused.

That biological warfare would spread to the Occupied Territories was to him of no consequence.

Furthermore Churchill was also obsessed with retaining the British Empire and could be quite inconsiderate to leaders of the Dominions. Churchill hoped that the War would increase the power of Britain within the Empire.

As more documents emerge, it is clear Churchill, while he was a great leader, was by no means a Saint

It's funny how the mind works. Some morning to write a comment is impossible, others, as today, one could write a book. Speaking personally, as I try to do always. I am a Royalist and was full of joy when I saw thousands of people taking part in yesterdays celebrations in honour of Queen Elizabeth 2nd Reign. The pomp and ceremony attached to anything to do with the UK has a special, sincere place in my heart, however, I didnt quite feel the same way yesterday. I felt sad because I for one know this country is gradually but surely losing it's status, importance and it's Heritage is becoming unimportant.

Drunken so called football fans, booing Prince William and the National Anthem. Perhaps these people would be happier living in a Republic country ie., China or North Korea. Who are the enemy within that are organising this behaviour? what they are doing is tantamount to High Treason.

My one wish is that the majority of the people proudly waving the Union Flag yesterday still support Brexit.

Unfortunately, whilst all the celebrations, regarding the Queens Jubilee, were taking place, the Country was still being invaded by hoads of so called migrants that are destroying our way of life. A life that has been created by the loss of British lives over the centuries.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

Who is Responsible

Prime Minister Boris Johnson and Home Secretary Priti Patel make all the right noises when it comes to law and order. They say that violent protestors will be prosecuted, but the police are committed to a liberal agenda. They stand and watch while criminals equipped with ropes and tools bring down statues and desecrate war memorials.

High-ranking police officers dripping with gold braid appear on our television screens to congratulate themselves. Far from apologising to the public for their ineptitude, they praise those officers who 'took the knee'; a political gesture that should not be allowed in a supposedly non-political police force.

It is not my intention to criticise the police. They do a difficult job and we are all grateful to them. But they do themselves no favours by running away from rampaging hooligans, ignoring organised gangs of child abusers, or allowing the open sale and use of drugs. These are political decisions made by senior officers, but who exactly is responsible?

Laws are made by Parliament. It's the duty of the police to enforce laws not to ignore them at their convenience. It might be politically expedient to turn a blind eye to lawbreaking but that is not what we pay them for. If we are to be governed by the police we might as well abolish Parliament.

SCIENCE FICTION OR FACT

Science fiction has an incredible ability to cover any type of story. But primarily it allows people living in a dystopia to gasp in horror at another dystopia they don't live in whilst eating popcorn.

It really is somewhat bizarre that we live in a world that simultaneously has The Terminator franchise and amusing real life stories about the Google engineer who claims that the company AI has already achieved sentience. The existence of the first doesn't serve as a warning, nor does every horrific tale of scientific hubris gone wrong. All of these fictional warnings instead install the most ghastly imaginable complacency, in which ANY warning about ANY scientific development is also considered fictional.

Comedy thrives on incongruity, especially absurdist comedy. One of my favourite ever Monty Python sketches is one they included in a pilot for German television. It featured a mock documentary style narration about 'Mouse Boys', who were cowboys in everything except the fact that the animals they wrangled, drove and branded were mice. I think it's this kind of incongruity that explains why real life developments that would terrify us in fiction are greeted as amusing little footnotes when they occur in reality. The Google engineer is a 'mouse boy'. We just can't square the seriousness of his claim with the experience we have, and are therefore prompted to laugh.

After all, we have only seen deadly AI directed killing machines in fiction. It's funny that anyone takes that threat seriously. Why, we sat through the whole thing in a cinema and had a lovely time.

Perhaps some of this effect, the way science fiction has acted as a boy crying wolf to the point where we are conditioned to greet real concerns as laughable, explains the astonishingly complacent way in which the western world accepted a novel, experimental medical treatment that hadn't been properly tested.

This is also the world in which we, or at least seemingly a majority of us, laugh at people telling us how many food processing plants have been set on fire in the US. It is the world in which we are quite astonishingly accepting of moves our leaders make towards World War Three. It is the world in which the presence of nearly 50 biolabs capable of weaponising a virus in a corrupt nation like Ukraine is considered perfectly normal and indeed the status quo that we should militarily defend.

It's even the world in which Bill Gates can fund research into blocking out the sun and people critical of Bill Gates are the ones who are laughed at.

If SkyNet comes, be sure to know that the real John Connor will be laughed at.

TONY BLAIR

"Never forget....this veritable cretin was simply a third-rate lawyer with little or no experience in prosecuting or winning ANY legal cases or arguments in his 'miniature' career.

He was regularly referred to as a 'little girlie' in the chambers in which he 'worked'.

He, together with Brown and the effeminate ponce Mandelson decided between themselves to form 'New Labour' which in fact had little or nothing to do with the Labour Party of old. They single-handedly threw out one of the VITAL and MAIN aims of the Labour Party which focussed on re-Nationalisation of all essential industries and thus all Labour voters, so-called, fell for this political 'three-card-trick.....lock-stock-and-barrel. Thus was born the greatest con in British politics.....it was no longer a Socialist/Labour Party, but a concoction formulated by the Machiavellian schemer 'Meddlesome', as a consequence these three hijacked the votes of millions of working Labour people.....which ended up with further lying and scheming, resulting in the deaths of our brave soldiers.....but in the process saving the life of Blair's 'little darling boy', now a multi-millionaire, but the destruction of ANY hope for peace in the Middle East for another hundred years. Now this cretin is trying desperately to enter main-line politics simply as a vanity project as a way to spend some of his ill-gotten fortune and further his arrogant aims.

DISCARD THIS CRETIN at ALL costs. He is a political nobody and should shuffle his way off-Stage to the ignominy he has earned FOR A LIFE OF CAPITAL CRIMES against our soldiers and our blessed country. BE OFF WITH YOU....CRETIN".

New British Union office needs your help

As members will know, the New British Union has been under constant attack since first forming in 2012. Our opponents will not stop. Nor must we.

To date they have succeeded in getting the party's PayPal account closed, the new donorbox account, Facebook page, YouTube channel all shutdown, and banks presently refuse to do business with us. This has interfered with the running of the New British Union; and especially interfered with the office rental itself.

However, and despite this, on a day-to-day basis the office continues to remain a great success. It has allowed us to increase New British Union membership and literature. The office has also allowed the New British Union to store and secure far more valuable resources and property: such as computers, printers, banners, flags and posters.

To this end then the New British Union would ask its members and supporters to consider setting up a monthly debit of £10.00.

Sort code 09-01-29
Account number 26438566

This to secure the rent for the office so that, together, we might carry on the struggle and fight.
