

FOR A NEW AWAKENING IN THE 21st CENTURY

the BLACKSHIRT

Issue nine

Original leader of Pediga UK and well known supporter of various patriotic groups Tim Scott announced today that he has joined the New British Union and embraced British Fascism. Tim will be acting as NBU recruitment Officer as well as helping out with security and training.

Tim's statement;

I have come to the conclusion that the NBU is the way forward for unity and our way of life. My self being against the class system and the political elite I find the NBU has the right path and a concrete structure of which too carry out our vision of a safe and prosperous country for our future and our children's future. I am ex-military and have travelled the world working and as a volunteer to help others and I fully understand other cultures and ways of life but all that being said I truly believe we deserve our way of life and our culture along with our fantastic history to be promoted back into our life's.

We have been brainwashed and walked into a liberal neo-communist state of self-hate and disrespect towards anyone who is proud of our country, I find this very dangerous for our future as a country and more importantly for our children's future. The liberal elite like to keep us busy with political correctness and other communist methods all renamed with modern terms to keep us patriots at bay. I myself have faced discrimination and violence for years for my patriotic views and for being a veteran of this great country I will not let our light burn out we hold something the elite do not have and it's a common love and respect for our country and way of life.

The NBU gives the working class a chance again in a patriotic movement more smart and more to the point, and for me I fully understand there is a problem with the likes of Islam I have for years also understood the elite use this for self-gain and as a tool and in return the working class stay quiet and out the way as such like a side track at the same time the rich get richer and the poor get poorer and by any human-being standard's this is not a good future for the working class people of the UK.

My conclusion is, and as I have done for a long time, is to support the NBU in any future activities they carry out and I ask anyone who is sceptical of British Fascism to research outside of main stream media and look into it with an open mind and also ask yourself why the elite fear British fascism and you will find the answer is simple British fascism is for the people not the political elite.

I fully support Gary Raikes and the team in a well disciplined and professional movement for the people of this country, and it is a natural step for a veteran like myself to progress to. I would ask anyone who has followed me to read the NBU website fully and understand the history of British Fascism. The NBU membership is free and for me this is leading by example and it shows this movement is for the true hard-working people of this country who suffer at the hands of the elite.

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

Tim Scott

We are happy to announce the appointment of our new NBU Youth Officer, Logan Mills

logan is already being sent contact details of under 18 years old interested in the movement and told us earlier; "I am 16 years of age I live in Scotland, Oswald Mosley is my idol I'm straight to the point and down to earth. I have great people skills I also am not afraid to speak my mind I can convince people to listen to what I am saying I believe a fascist state in Britain is the best and only option to make Britain great again and I will take great honour in helping the NBU with any and all needs."

The political elite have misruled Britain for decades with their limited vision and sordid aspirations, they are doggedly opposed to any proposition to change the present state of affairs. The salvation of wrecked political theories loom far more important in their darkened minds than the salvation, by hook or crook, of Great Britain.

Our more than damnable governments have done everything in their power to crush in British hearts the national spirit of Britain. The cultivation of British patriotism has been discouraged by the political elite, its expression sneered at, and in many cases forbidden in the nations schools. Britain has deliberately sunk herself in her own esteem, in her own pride. This criminal self-effacement is at the root of the peril of Britain during this uncertain time. The traitors who gamble for their own hand in politics who put the outwarn cry of party before the warcry of Country have much to answer for.

Gary Raikes

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

REPORT FROM OUR MAN IN HUNGARY

Today our society is already trapped. It feels an old feeling in its guts, coming back in another form: fear. A new, modern, and progressive fear, a fear that we will lose the shoddy comfort offered by the system. This new fear appears to be much stronger than the old-fashioned fear of a more concrete punishment.

In 2004, we were accepted into the trendiest club of the moment, the European Union. To get in, we had to make a lot of effort: we had to change our laws, traffic signs, and adapt to and accept new rules. Amongst those rules, we had to protect the club's borders, since we were the outermost country in it.

In 2015, the migrant crisis got will be built because it's stronger and things got out of consistent with the rules. hand. The Hungarians are afraid; they never saw anything like this. Each time such a huge group of strangers has come to the country, it ended in a proper, armed invasion and in a bloodbath. They put their trust in their Prime Minister and support his government's decision to build a wall. It's nothing more or less than strict respect for our country's responsibilities that were signed a decade ago. It has become a real topic. There is debate, suspicion, and accusations of demagoguery, of populism. The Prime Minister is both attacked and defended. We claim that the wall is necessary. Whatever, it

It's precisely at this moment, facing the massive and violent criticisms and attacks from our new partners that we realised, not without disgust and fright, that their hypocrisy is the same as our former occupiers'. Again, something is being said and something else is being done. Like our political class, we're too trapped by this same fear of losing the few advantages that appear to be vital to escape the system.

Sachant Ostrovski.

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

FEATURED OFFICER RICHARD PAYNE

Hail Comrades , My name is Richard and I have been with the NBU since it's earliest days . I have been a follower of right wing politics since later childhood but took an active interest after turning 50 . I joined the BNP and stood as a candidate for 2 elections in Banff and Buchan , then for highlands and Islands , was a member of Britain First briefly, and presently am in the NBU . During my time with the BNP I became very aware popular policies , good presentation , and common sense have no place in mainstream politics , that the ballot box is filled with pre decided , even fraudulent votes , and that the majority of voters have lost the idea completely of what democracy is and how it's meant to work . Today we see what is left of nationalism throwing blame on other nationalists for election failure and hoarding their own little bit of identity while the government and the far left grind down each nationalist party that dares to lift it's head above the parapet . Here in Scotland the entire nation is socialist and at present governed from Holyrood by a combination of SNP and Greens , it's hard to imagine anyone could vote for either , let alone garner enough votes to get either into Holyrood . Nichola Sturgeon is on her never ending mission to break up the UK and using any and every excuse possible to have indiref after indiref until she gets her way and justifies Alex Salmonds trust in her . The Greens are a basket case of far left ideology and idiocy matched only by the LibDems and Socialist Workers . I honestly and deeply believe Scotland deserves better , the UK deserves better . All the mainstream parties have spent decades lying to the electorate , living a very luxurious lifestyle on our taxes , thieving from the taxpayers with fraudulent expenses . displacing the indigenous peoples of the nations of the UK with virtually unrestricted immigration . Brexit , long overdue , is being hotly contested by all the socialist parties with the exception of Labour , who are hoping to regain some of their voter base after years of ignoring them . The NBU is indeed a nationalist party , and a right wing party , but it also has a strong socialist foundation but with a twist . That socialist foundation is implicit , you must contribute as well as take , and you start by taking responsibility for yourself and your actions (or inactions) . The idea that some government entity will take care of you from the cradle to the grave , that "free" medical care entitles you to abuse the system and your body , that dumbing down the education system gives a more even playing field to make everyone a winner , that hurting someone's feelings is more important than the truth , this is a smokescreen put up by the mainstream parties to buy votes and gain access to the gravy train of Westminster , Holyrood , and Brussels . Cultural Marxism , political correctness , and white privilege are tools used by the mainstream to force the vast majority to comply without complaint to unacceptable changes to society to our very culture . Violent protests and marches from the right only attract the attention of far left thugs and bad press , followed by police and court actions . The only way forward is covertly , by all means gather the support of other political parties if possible while keeping in mind that putting your head above the parapet is suicidal , that growing in popularity also attracts the attention of those who's interests lie in keeping the west on it's path of self destruction . Fascism has the answers to all the ills the west now faces , but since the second world war it gained an evil reputation that must be overcome if any western society hopes to maintain it's identity and seek salvation from the global banking and global corporatism that seeks to turn every single one of us into mindless drones serving only the faceless elite . Make no mistake radical Islam , far left socialism , loss of morality , loss of religion and cultural Marxism are only the obvious symptoms of the disease that is killing western society

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

Richard Payne
NBU Scotland

Fighting elections you can not win is a waste of your members time, effort and money. Only disappointment, disalussionment and crashing morale await the old nationalist parties . Parties that have had 40 years to appeal to voters will once again poll in double figures if lucky! All of them have shrinking memberships, none of them appeal to the people, big fish in a shrinking pond with a drought looming over the horizon. There is another way, a better way, the British Fascist way! Disciplined, dedicated, directed. Put simply it is putting the aims of British Fascism to the people away from the political party arena. This is not anything new to British Fascism, back in 1927 The British Lion, the newspaper of The British Fascists, featured an article headed 'Is Fascism political?' This was one of many such articles discussing if Fascism should remain a movement or become a political party. Later Mosley's BUF also concentrated on building a movement before contesting Parliament elections.

Both movements had members elected at council level, these at first were elected as 'Independents', later the BUF had candidates elected as Blackshirts. NBU has one member elected as an independent who is working to bring our ideas into the mainstream. This has been done away from the spotlight, or indeed the 'search light', no fuss, no marches, no demos, no confrontation. This is the quiet revolution, a covert operation getting the voice offascism into positions of authority across Britain.

Bulgarian pickpockets should be in prison

England must be the laughing stock of the world, especially amongst foreigners coming to live here, if not to work here too. The recent case of the two Bulgarian women found guilty of stealing from a 76-year-old woman in Derby is a case in point. "Pick pockets to be deported unless they stop stealing" [16th March].

After following the woman into Iceland they took the purse from her handbag and kept £40 of her money. One of the Bulgarians had three previous convictions for thieving from a person and the other one had been cautioned for a similar offence.

They are obviously not working as one of them said she needed the money for food. Believe it or not, they were both on bail at the time for trying to steal a purse from an old person in the north of England.

What did the judge decide? He gave them a 12-month prison sentence, suspended for two years, 20 days' rehabilitation activity and 120 hours of unpaid work! Very little for frightening the old lady so much that she cannot sleep and has nightmares when she does! Oh, and the judge said that if they did not behave they would be deported.

Surely they should have been imprisoned as a deterrent for others and then sent back to Bulgaria once their sentence was served.

Roll on the day when we can really control our borders and keep such lowlifes as these out.

Granville V Stone

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

NEW BRITISH UNION
21st Century Blackshirts

newbritishunion.co.uk

In an age in which both Tories and Labour have become disconnected from the people they represent, the organizations willing to fight for the British people are demonized and vilified for not surrendering to the multicultural mess offered by the main parties.

If a party cannot stand for its own people, it only stands for the destruction of the very nation it's supposed to serve.

The New British Union recognizes the need for Britain to remain British. A country that lets in everyone is fundamentally a country for no one. We believe this not out of hatred for those unlike us, but out of love for our own and the necessity of preserving our country, people, and values.

A nation is not an idea; "liberty" doesn't make a nation. A nation is a people, a history, a culture.

The New British Union will not allow the British People to be quietly replaced, or rot in poverty and unemployment. Rather, we will fight for their prosperity and survival.

(even if it's not considered hip to do so.)

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

A Short History of the Blackshirts

Adam MacGregor

On the 1st of October 1932, thirty two founder members of the British Union of Fascists donned the Blackshirt and attended the inaugural meeting of the BUF in Great George Street, London. There Sir Oswald Mosley, the Leader of the new movement, unfolded a black banner emblazoned with silver fasces – a motif symbolizing strength through unity.

Totally disillusioned with the old parties' inability to deal with the economic and social problems which gripped the country, he formed the short-lived New Party. Vicious physical attacks and smears launched by the Communists and their fellow travellers quickly forced him to the conclusion that a more radical and robust movement was needed. In Fascism he found the ideal which he could build the Greater Britain.

The driving force behind British Fascism was that it stood for values and policies directly opposed to the old order's philosophy; for patriotism against Communism; order and discipline against chaos and anarchy; social justice against exploitation; Britain First against internationalism; national unity against class conflict; individual effort and creative toil against high finance. Central to the fascist philosophy was the need for a higher form of civilisation, built by a new type of man; the Greater Britain built by the Blackshirt.

ACTION

From its very foundation, the BUF was a movement of the streets. BUF branches were formed all over the British Isles as thousands of people heeded Mosley's call for a New World Order of politics. British Union recaptured the spirit of the trenches; the spirit of comradeship and unity, with many World War veterans joining the movement. Night after night, throughout the country, Blackshirts would stand on street corners selling their publications, or hold open-air meetings in the face of vicious Red intimidation. The spirit of the BUF would take them marching into areas of Britain regarded by the Communists or Jewish immigrants as their own. Blackshirts of all ages and all walks of life stood shoulder to shoulder, united in their belief in Mosley and the crusade for Britain reborn

The message was taken all over the country, from the cotton in Lancashire in a campaign against cheap foreign imports, to small villages in East Anglia in support of British agriculture and against the hated church tithe tax. Thousands flocked to hear the Fascist message at giant meetings. Fifteen thousand people attended an indoor rally at Olympia in 1934, which is best remembered for the Communist-orchestrated violence which the press blamed on the Blackshirts. At a rally in Hyde Park three months later, a crowd of 100,000 listened to Mosley's call for Britain to awake to their destiny of greatness. In the first couple of years, BUF membership soared to 70,000, with 400 active branches. The British Union initially received the support of press baron Lord Rothermere, owner of the Daily Mail and the Evening News. On January 8th, 1934, the Mail carried the front page headline "Hurrah for the Blackshirts!"

The spirit of the dynamic new movement was summoned up by their Leader in a speech to eight thousand people in the Albert Hall on a March evening in 1934:

'Hold high the head of Britain, lift strong the voice of Empire. Let us to Europe and the World proclaim that the heart of this great people is undaunted and invincible. This flag still challenges the winds of destiny. This flame still burns. This glory shall not die. The soul of Empire is alive, and Britain again dares to be great.'

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

Such resurgent nationalism rapidly attracted the virulent hostility of organised Jewry. By 1935 Lord Rothermere had withdrawn his support due to Jewish pressure and threats to his advertising revenue. In the East End of London, the BUF began to campaign

The movement abstained from the 1935 general election, although it ran a vigorous campaign around the slogan "Fascism Next Time." The following year during the Abdication Crisis, the BUF mounted a "Stand by the King" campaign in support of Edward VIII, who had not only displayed great sympathy with the plight of the unemployed but was also a great personal friend of Mosley, and a supporter of his ideas.

trouble, he agreed. Thus, in spite of the Communist mythology associated with the event, the alien-inspired mob never had to face, let alone fight with the tough and disciplined column of Blackshirts. Also conveniently forgotten is the fact that East London units of the BUF marched down Cable Street the following weekend.

The BUF entered electoral politics in London in 1937, fighting six London County Council seats, where they averaged 19% of the vote. This was particularly impressive because only householders were entitled to vote in the LCC elections, which ruled out the BUF's many younger supporters. An even better result was the victory of a British Union candidate in the heart of rural Suffolk. Emphasising the BUF's plans to revive agriculture, Ronald Creasey was elected to Eye District Council.

against the problems caused by the presence of 150,000 East European Jewish immigrants in an area which suffered from housing shortages, high unemployment and widespread poverty. It was in the East End that the BUF developed a truly mass following. Many East-Enders saw Mosley as the saviour of Britain.

The year 1936 also saw the Battle of Cable Street, where a huge mob of Jews and Communists, brought from all round the country, fought with the police to prevent Mosley and his men from marching through the East End. When the police asked Mosley to cancel his parade in order to prevent further

INTERNMENT

As war clouds gathered again over Europe, the BUF stepped up its campaign for British non-intervention in any future conflict. On 16th July 1939, at the world's largest indoor meeting, 30,000 people packed London's Earl's Court to hear Mosley demand that

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

"Britons must fight for Britain only."

After Britain's declaration of war on 1st September 1939, Mosley ordered BUF members to do nothing to injure their country or help any foreign power.

Throughout the rest of the year and early 1940, the BUF campaigned for a negotiated peace with Germany to end a war which had nothing to do with Britain and which, it was already obvious, would end with national bankruptcy if it continued. The message fell on increasingly receptive ears.

Then, on the evening of May 22nd 1940, the new coalition government introduced Regulation 18b which provided for the arrest of dissidents without charge or trial. The voice of the British Union of Fascists was finally silenced. Mosley and over 750 of his "boys" were thrown into prison cells previously deemed as unfit for the worst criminals, and then into concentration camps at Ascot and on the Isle of Man. Many were ex-servicemen who had already proved their loyalty to their country in the bloody fields of Flanders. These men were now imprisoned on the orders of the Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, who had spent that conflict in the safety of an orchard as a conscientious objector.

While their Leader and comrades rotted in concentration camps, many younger rank-and-file Blackshirts gave their lives in a war which they had striven to prevent. The first British casualties of the entire war were two volunteer gunners, George Brocking and Kenneth Day, who were killed in action bombing the German fleet in the Keil Canal in the second day of the war. Brocking, aged 22, has no known grave, while his 20 year old Blackshirt comrade was buried with full military honours by the Luftwaffe.

Perhaps more ironic still was the treatment of several BUF members who volunteered to take their small pleasure boats to Dunkirk to help evacuate the remnants of the British army following its defeat in France. Having saved dozens of soldiers on repeated crossings through German bombing and gunfire, they finally staggered exhausted onto dry land only to be thrown into prison as potential traitors.

OUR PROMISE

Today, nearly a lifetime after the birth of the BUF, the young nationalists of a new generation, on the same streets those brave men walked, carry on the same fight for a Greater Britain; confronted by the same Red and Jewish violence and the same media lies which the Blackshirts faced in the 1930's. As we carry on the struggle which they began, we repeat the words of their Leader to make the brave men who donned the Blackshirt this promise:

'To the dead heroes of Britain, in sacred union, we say: like you, we give ourselves to Britain – across the ages that divide us, across the glories of Britain that unite us – we gaze into your eyes and give this holy vow: we will be true -Today, Tomorrow and Forever – Britain lives!'

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

Our politicians have done everything in their power to crush in British hearts the national spirit of Britain.

The cultivation of British patriotism has been discouraged by the political elite, its expression sneered at, and in many cases forbidden in the nations schools. Britain has deliberately sunk herself in her own esteem, in her own pride. This criminal self-effacement is at the root of the peril of Britain during this uncertain time. The traitors who gamble for their own hand in politics who put the outworn cry of party before the war cry of Country have much to answer for.

If it is possible to pierce for one moment the thick hide of your hypocrisy, this broadcast will have served its purpose. An appeal to ideas, a plea in the cause of justice and common-sense would leave you unmoved. But a threat to your own precious skin will earn an immediate response.

It is odd that you should be so concerned over your own skin when you have been so singularly uninterested in the fate of better folk than yourselves.

On going wars are merely another field for your profiteering, for mouthing sickening platitudes and cheap lies, while better men than you were killing and being killed to keep you in power, a vote catching chance, an opportunity to wave the Union Flag in order to hide the three brass balls behind it.

Let us examine the legacy that you leave us, let us recall what debt of gratitude we owe politicians. You have given us PROSPERITY. We have been taught that all men are equal. You have made it so. To the idle rich you have added the idle poor. You have allowed the craftsmen, who took pride in their work, to become as unfamiliar with toil as the political elite of Westminster. But you have added the extra insult of denying them the very means by which to live, you have not merely thrown them out of work you have imported cheap labour to replace them, you have denied them the right to work, the right to human dignity.

You have given us JUSTICE. You have taught us it is right for the speculator to gamble in the peoples vital supplies, in order to make profits for themselves. You have taught us that it is wrong for the destitute to steal in order to live.

Your creed is based on the survival of the slickest. It does not interest you that in the battle for supremacy a thousand men may be exploited for the enrichment of one. To you labour is just another commodity to be bought in the cheapest market and scrapped when it comes to be profitable.

You have given us an IDEAL. Virile creeds for which to fight, beliefs that are worth our sacrifice. Your Conservative party has nothing left to conserve but the profits of alien usury. The land it was sworn to protect has gone to waste. Your Socialist Party has forgotten its socialist roots. The once great Liberal Party reduced through its lies to fringe status. You have been constant in only one thing, your materialism. Whether it is the materialism of the money lender or the materialism of Marx, it must clash with any creed that rates the worker as higher than a mere cog in the industrial machine.

And now realising that a new generation of voters constitute a threat to your system you are prepared to go to any length to shore up its collapse. You appease our enemy while oppressing British Patriots, and to advert the end of your reign you are even willing to once again send our people into the hell of another European war.

But you are too late; the generation reared on disillusion that has learnt to distrust everything has also learnt to distrust the political class. The workers you have sought to divide will come together with the purpose of destroying you. The men on the dole, the men sweating in industrial hell holes on minimum wages, the men fighting your illegal wars, the men who have seen this country sink into a multicultural morass of crime and hatred. In trying to deceive us you have deceived yourselves. The war you are interested in us fighting is not the war we want to fight; it is a war against you and the system you stand for, a disciplined insurrection, it is the British Fascist revolutionary war that we intend to wage. People not politicians will change this country.

Gary Raikes

Local elections

Regional Officers check list for members standing as Independent candidates in coming elections,

- 1/ Select ward.
 - 2/ Select candidates.
 - 3/ Allocate personnel.
 - 4/ Allocate funds.
 - 5/ Prepare election address and other printed matter.
 - 6/ Envelope addressing.
 - 7/ Prepare list of meeting rooms.
 - 8/ Prepare an outline of campaign meetings indoors and outdoors.
 - 9/ Obtain maps of ward.
 - 10/ Prepare all leaflets and posters etc.
- Responsibility

I have long held an interest in fascism for many years. I have become increasingly disenchanted with traditional party politics and watched with growing horror the rise of a generation of weak, ignorant and clearly deluded "social justice warriors" I can't just sit and watch anymore. Though poor health stops me from doing very much I believe I need to make a stand and support a movement that may go some way towards saving our country.

Martin Cooke

NBU MEETING

NBU South East Officer Terry Mayers is organising a get together for all members in his region, members from other regions will be more than welcome to attend.

The meeting will be held next month

please contact

terry.mayers1@aol.com

for full info.

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

BOOK REVIEW

Richard Reynell Bellamy was brought up in the aftermath of the Great War of 1914-1918. For many years afterwards, men with severe disabilities and disfigurements were a common sight on the streets of Britain: the result of injuries sustained in the carnage of the trenches. Long before the Great Depression of 1931 the pinched faces of hungry children told of widespread poverty in northern industrial towns in what was the richest Empire the world had ever seen. The jobs of their parents had long ago passed to the cheap sweated labour countries of Asia and elsewhere.

Bellamy was not one to grumble in the comfort of an armchair and leave the solution to others. He joined the Blackshirts almost at the start and went out onto British streets to fight for peace and prosperity through Mosley's policies of a high wage economy, economic autarky, a Corporate State - and no more wars unless Britain was attacked.

This brought him into daily conflict with communists, democratic socialists and capitalist supporters. But he remained true to what he believed in and in 1940 paid for it with imprisonment without charge or trial under the infamous Defence Regulation 18B.

In the course of his political odyssey Bellamy, came to know just about every British Blackshirt worth knowing and attended all the major Leader meetings and many local ones besides.

Towards the end of his life, at Oswald Mosley's request, he wrote it all down for posterity - providing this unique inside story of the British Union of Fascists.

140mm x 216 mm- Illustrated - Gloss Laminated - 310 Pages

Essays on Fascism by Oswald Mosley, Benito Mussolini, Giovanni Gentile, and Alfredo Rocco. "The Ideology of Fascism" was written by Oswald Mosley in 1967 and provides a post WW2 analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of Fascism as a political doctrine, and utilising its strengths proposes a United Europe, in union with science, as a prime requirement for the 21st Century. "The Doctrine of Fascism" was written by Benito Mussolini and the Italian philosopher Giovanni Gentile. A key concept of which was that fascism was a rejection of previous models: "If the 19th century was the century of the individual we are free to believe that this is the 'collective' century, and therefore the century of the State". Giovanni Gentile was inspired by Italian intellectuals such as

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

Mazzini, Rosmini, Gioberti, and Spaventa from whom he developed the idea of "self-construction", but also was strongly influenced by the German idealist and materialist schools of thought — namely Marx, Hegel, Fichte, and Nietzsche. Gentile was described by Mussolini, as 'the philosopher of Fascism'.

Alfredo Rocco developed the economic and political theory of corporatism which would become part of the Fascist Manifesto of the National Fascist Party. Rocco denounced the European powers for imposing foreign culture on Italy and criticized the European powers for endorsing too much liberalism and individualism. The Fascist Manifesto was endorsed by a large number of intellectuals, and writers, including Luigi Pirandello, Gabriele D'Annunzio, Filippo Tommaso Marinetti and Giuseppe Ungaretti.

These books and many more are available from Blackhouse Publishing <https://www.blackhousepublishing.com/>

NBU The natural party of youth

The nations youth is that part of it which is still making desperate attempt to find security of occupation and is preoccupied with the struggle to make good, not just financially, but philosophically. The age in which we live will go down in history as the age which had the folly to permit the greatest number of willing young workers to rot away in unwilling idleness.

I fail to see any real and dangerous signs of the often mentioned demoralisation of youth. But I do see clearly and unmistakably ghastly signs and evidence of youth's starvation. Youth is rarely put on a pedestal except at such times as it is being murdered and mangled and maimed. When a nation really is up against it, when in other words, a country is fighting for its life, our elders see in the destruction of youth their own possible salvation.

Those that think and say the vilest things about modern youth are the very people who, when their own skins are in danger, pay lip service to youths heroism and self sacrifice. There are plenty of people who are willing to give youth a chance of proving its worthiness to die, who would not lift a finger to provide youth with an opportunity of proving its worthiness to live.

What are the sins of which today's youth are supposed to be guilty of? Frivolity, lack of ambition and discipline, sport-mania, irresponsibility lack of 'guts' and an obsession with celebrity. Those that make these accusations deserve to be told that they are hypocrites looking round for excuses for their own past seductions and incompetencies.

And where is the evidence that youth is unambitious? Or that it is irresponsible? The complete answer to such a charge is to be found in the fact that, notwithstanding the terrible period of austerity that we are going through, this nation of ours has kept its head and heart in the right places. If youth had been only half as bad as it has been made out to be it would be impossible to strike a optimistic note or utter a word of hope for the future.

The grand army of today's youth is as good as the youth of yesterday or the day before. But unfortunately it isn't as lucky, except in the sense that though its difficulties and problems are almost unthinkably perplexing, its courage and fortitude are big enough and strong enough to carry it to victory.

Fascism is a revolution of the young against the out-dated thinking of the old, New British Union is the natural home for our young people for we are both the future of Britain.

Gary Raikes

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT

NBU APPEAL

Dear comrade,

Membership continues to grow quickly as does the requests for information. It is our wish to produce a hard copy of the first twelve issues of The Blackshirt edited into a single volume, a glossy coloured magazine style that can be handed out across the country. We will also post copies out to all members of the House of Lords and 'right wing' politicians along with over 500 media contacts.

To do this we need to raise funds, I know how difficult it can be to be an active member of NBU with work and family commitments etc but this is a chance for all to help.

A small donation from as many members as possible will make this possible I don't like to ask for money but the vast increase in interest in NBU over the first two months of this year has been staggering, it is a case of strike when the iron is hot.

I have been attending meetings all over the UK and will carry on through the year, a glossy magazine will be a really useful propaganda tool to help me take our message to the people.

Please donate whatever you can afford, if possible, to enable us to take another giant step forward, every pound is another nail in the political elites coffin.

Thank you

Gary Raikes

<http://newbritishunion.co.uk/propaganda-appeal.html>

Notice is hereby given of the first Jonathan Bowden dinner

Friday the 26th of May 2017 in London

Speakers to include:

A man of egregious erudition and eloquence, who for discretion's sake must remain unnamed,

Mr. Adam Wallace, of the eponymous Youtube channel and WestCoast Reactionaries,

Mr. Alex Kurtagic

who will no doubt update us on the progress of the biography,

Mr. Michael Woodbridge,

the Chairman of the Jonathan Bowden Society.

In order to find an appropriately sized venue, please let me know if you are at all interested in attending,

steadsteadman@hotmail.com

This dinner will be eaten on the eve of the next London Forum, which will convene around lunchtime on the 27th, when, in addition to the egregiously erudite and eloquent speaker cited above, it will be our pleasure to host

Dr. Tomas Sunič,

Dr. George Whale,

A mystery guest from Eastern Europe, and Millennial Woes, in his first public speaking engagement in Britain.

(We are considering offering a combined ticket to both events at a reduced rate)

NEW BRITISH UNION - LEADER – COMRADES - MOVEMENT