Holding, as we do, that the present anarchic system of sham democracy is one of collective or committee guilt with little individual liability, we place the emphasis throughout NBU on the personal and individual responsibility of the officer who is given an appointment. They are completely responsible for all that happens in the area of the position allotted to them and may not pass any of the responsibility to any system of committees or other action-hampering bodies. We believe firmly that action proceeds from the individual and not from any body of people however small or however well-chosen they may be.

The York meeting was a great success, a productive council meeting and enjoyable get together held right in the centre of the city with no problems. Nine officers from around the UK attended in person and another three were represented by video, Skype call and written statement.

Due to the fact that a few officers who had confirmed their attendance but who failed to turn up or offer their apologies the council agreed to impose a ‘two strikes and out’ policy.

From 27-4-19 any officer missing two council meetings in a row with no excuse given will be removed from their role.

Scotland Officer Richard Payne gave a short talk explaining NBU electoral strategy.

New media Officer Rene Fraser was introduced to the council and informed it of his plans for NBU media channel.
Tim Scott sent a video talking about working with veterans and running an anti-war campaign. The council suggested he be made NBU Veterans Officer so as to be able to concentrate on this new initiative.

Tim has agreed to take on the Veteran Officers role and is formulating a plan on how to move that forward (more in this issue).

Chris White host of BWR was appointed City of London officer.

A good discussion took place with suggestions and positive criticism on how we can improve and move NBU forward, some bits may be included in a future video of the meeting filmed by Clive Jones.

On the potential of the youth for our future

Hello readers and comrades,
Some people occasionally doubt the potential of the youth to assist in the process of gaining the fascist state. This assumption is very commonplace among many people, in the sense that the youth can not be “tamed” or organised effectively.

This assumption is very wrong and based (mainly) on only one argument.

The youth is actually the strongest force within our movement as their minds are still developing and thus they are more able to “deposit” information; thus, the youth has the full potential and capability of learning to love and respect our great civilization and to care and continue it for a very long time.

A fully developed man learns his values from a young age and this has been proven many times.

Another reason why the youth is very strong and vital is that the youth is stronger and has a much greater potential of being active within our movement. In this way, we can accomplish our targets easier and we can ensure that they will remain on for many generations to pass on.

For one thing we can hope: that our youth will not be influenced anymore by the corrupt mentality of this world. If we think and see for a while what has happened the past few years and how many attempts have been made to weaken and make our youth submissive, we should start to believe that it is our duty to protect the youth from further harm—actually it IS our DUTY to do that!

So the youth is the precious future of the country and it should not be let to be lost.

HURRAH FOR THE BLACKSHIRTS

Reviewed by Roger Bartlett

Harold Harmsworth (Lord Rothermere) was the Editor of the "Daily Mail" and he also owned the "Daily Mirror" during the 1930s. In January 1934, Lord Rothermere published an astonishing article in the Mail entitled "Hurrah for the Blackshirts!" openly supporting Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union Fascists (BUF). Lord Rothermere's "Daily Mirror" also published an article entitled "Give the Blackshirts a Helping Hand" reproducing BUF membership forms and organising a "Blackshirt Ladies Beauty Contest"!

Rothermere later dropped his backing for Mosley under pressure from Jewish advertisers connected with Lyons & Co and Salmon & Gluckstein but he continued to support Fascism in Italy and Germany, until the start of the disastrous European Brothers' Civil War of 1939-1945.

In his autobiography "My Life" (1968), Mosley wrote:

"I went to see him [Lord Rothermere] in a hotel he frequented, and found him in a relatively modest apartment, an imposing figure of monumental form lying flat on his back on a narrow brass bedstead; it seemed an incongruous setting for one of the richest men in the world.

Lord Rothermere explained that he was in trouble with certain advertisers, who had not liked his support of the blackshirts, and in company with many other people had now heard of the tobacco business and liked it still less. This was war, and I reacted strongly. The card to play with Rothermere was always his brother Northcliffe, whom I had never met but who was a legend for his audacity and dynamism. I said: 'Do you know what Northcliffe would have done? He would have said, "One more word from you, and the Daily Mail placards tomorrow will carry the words: 'Jews threaten British press' '; you will have no further trouble'.

The long struggle fluctuated, but I lost. He felt that I was asking him... to risk too much, not only for himself, but for others who depended on him. He was a patriot and an outstanding personality, but without the exceptional character necessary to take a strong line towards the end of a successful life, which might have led to a political dog-fight. In my view, the matter could have been quite reasonably settled if he had stood firm.

These Jewish interests took this action in the mistaken belief that their life and interest were threatened. Any group of men who feel this will naturally do their utmost to resist. This is no evidence of occult Jewish power, simply the determination to fight by men who in this case had the means to do it, which I had not. The whole affair was as simple as that, there was nothing obscure or mysterious about it."

MOSLEY'S BLACKSHIRTS
(The Inside Story of the British Union of Fascists)
Reviewed by David Clarke

Jeffrey Hamm, the last leader of the Union Movement, which in 1978 was renamed the Action Party, has compiled the personal stories of twelve members of the British Union of Fascists.

The stories are those of an East London shopkeeper, a Suffolk landowner, a suburban housewife, an Essex farmworker, and others from different walks of life. Each story is 5 to 9 pages in length with the writer's name after the story. The East London shopkeeper was Leonard Wise. He was the leader of the BUF's Cadet Corps. Other Blackshirts who submitted stories are: Richard Reynell Bellamy (author of We Marched With Mosley and BUF Administrator in Northern England), Arthur Beavan (West Ham BUF Organizer), John Warburton (Assistant District Leader Clapham Branch), Louise Irvine (Women's District Leader Birmingham Branch), George Hoggarth (District Treasurer Eye Branch), Edmund Warburton (Clapham Branch, London, member of the elite "1" Squad), John W. Charnley (author of Blackshirts and Roses and District Leader Hull Branch), Patrick O'Donagan (Member Shoreditch Branch in Newton Grove), Robert Saunders, O.B.E., (District Leader Dorset West), Ann Page, and R.N. Creasy (District Leader Eye). Almost all of these people were arrested under Defence Regulation 18b.

The stories submitted by each of these former BUF members contain much detail about the times, including the formation of BUF volunteers into a Blackshirt Battalion of the Queen Victoria's Rifles that was annihilated defending the evacuees at Dunkirk. The effect of the Blitz on Blackshirt families in East London and the loss of life there are also recorded. The Afterword is entitled "Britain's Long Slow Crumbling" and describes the differences between pre-war and post-war Britain. That is followed by a summary of Mosley's methods to improve Britain called "Mosley's Enduring Ideas".

ILLUSIONS OF GRANDEUR

Reviewed by Terry Martin

This volume analyzes the rise and fall of Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists, and shows how fascism as an ideology developed from the centre of the political spectrum as an attempt to achieve enforced national synthesis. The author examines the origins of British fascism, its foreign and economic policies, its supposed antisemitism and its relationship with contemporary institutions such as the police, judiciary and government. The text also sets the BUF in the context of European fascist movements, whilst at the same time providing a study of its successors, including the National Front.

THE BIRTH OF UNION MOVEMENT

In post war Britain patriotic politics had fragmented into dozens of different groups, often led by former members of British Union. In 1946 Mosley had launched the Mosley Book Clubs and was distributing a new publication, the Mosley Newsletter. On the 15th of November 1947 representatives of fifty one British patriotic groups attended the Winter Sales Conference of Mosley Publications at the Memorial Hall Farringdon Street, London. The hall held 1300 people and every seat was taken. Mosley gave a stirring speech on how Western civilisation was now threatened by Soviet communism and only a strong united Europe working with the USA as a partner could save our people from the Soviet barbarians. National action was not enough said Mosley “the Union of Europe was now necessary to the survival of every nation in this Continent. From that union would be born a civilisation of continuing creation and unfolding beauty that would stand the tests of time.” The audience was transfixed. Here was Mosley back with a vengeance, and back with a cause.

One by one the leaders of the big four patriotic groups addressed the audience. The Imperial Defence League and The Sons of St George offered their immediate support, and Victor Burgess of The Union of British Freedom offered to merge his organisation with any new group headed by Mosley without reservation. Finally came Jeffrey Hamm of The British League of ExServicemen, Hamm a former Blackshirt, had led his group into the old British Union heartlands of East London, and had been forced to fight a running battle with Zionist thugs from the 43 Group in order to establish a regular speaking venue in Dalstons Ridley Road market. Jeffrey Hamm chose to speak from the gallery of the hall, and told the audience of the great struggle for free speech the British League had won for East London. He then offered to merge his organisation into a new movement under Mosleys leadership. In the December issue of the Mosley Newsletter the leader announced that a new movement, UNION MOVEMENT would begin early in 1948.

CULTURAL MARXISM

The Frankfurt School of critical theory was founded by a number of Jews, as a part of Goethe University in Frankfurt in 1923. Its purpose was to develope Marxist studies in Germany. In 1933, the institute was shut down by the National Socialists and the Jews emigrated to Geneva and in 1935 to Columbia University in New York City and from there spread their ideas throughout many universities and most western countries. Their main purpose was to destabilize the West, western cultures and the family unit and bring neo-Marxism to the West.

"(In the 1920's) They were wondering why there was no socialist revolution in a sophisticated and advanced industrialized country like Germany. Why (was there) a Bolshevik Revolution a couple years before in Russia but not in Germany? They concluded that culture and the use of the (mass) media was the primary tool for oppressing the masses without the masses realizing that they're being oppressed."

The School dipped its fingers into politics, psychoanalysis, art, ideologies, culture, music, capitalism, consumerism. Anything and everything was critiqued to prove that the West and its people were being collectively hypnotised by our cultures and the mass media and that the mass media was a political tool. After generations of brainwashing, the ideas of the Frankfurt School are being taught in most universities by gentiles who have taken cultural Marxism hook line and sinker without knowing what its aim is. The globalization of the world, multi-culturalism and mass immigration of third world blacks and browns are a direct result of their teachings and they are destabilizing most western countries. Fascism is the only force capable of reversing the course of destruction on which we are all now travelling.

HELP SPREAD THE WORD
I read today, that Jeremy Corbyn suggests that electing a Labour Government can “Heal the divisions in society that led to the Brexit vote”

Now, that statement says a great deal. He is suggesting that society was divided in some way, and if it had not been, The United Kingdom would never have, for one moment, wanted to leave the Socialist paradise that is The European Union.

Again, he is boiling it down to a Cultural issue. If everyone was content with the Multiculturalism which the Left espouses, The United Kingdom would have not felt pressures that lead to dissatisfaction with the direction society was taking.

Yet, I feel, he is putting the issue backwards. It is precisely because The United Kingdom is uneasy about the way society is developing, the fact the indigenous British see themselves becoming strangers in their own land, alienated and marginalised in a plethora of alternative Cultures, that they wish to regain the essence of what it is to be British.

So, firstly, I would like to offer a little perspective on the British Labour Party.

It is not, the party of the working class, protector of the poor, the pillar which holds up the underprivileged. It is nothing less than full-blown Marxism. The core of their policies is Marxist. Jeremy Corbyn is a Marxist. Their plan for the future is a Marxist future.

And where better to find that Marxist future than in the Progressive Socialist Bloc that is The European Future.

In case some of you think Labour is just a Left-Centrist party, think again. They are Marxists, or to give them their other name, Communists, although you will never hear them use the “C” or the “M” word. For to utter those words would seriously damage their election prospects.

For the British People don’t want to be part of a Soviet Union, or if they were independent, to be a Cuba or a Venezuela. So, the Labour party hype their “Party of the working man” credentials instead.

But let us look where they came from. Thirty years ago, they were the political wing of the Trade Union Movement. And the Union bosses WERE hardcore Communists. They literally had ties to The Soviet Union. These Marxists constantly tried to shift the Labour position to an openly Marxist one, Livingstone in London, Hatton in Liverpool, anywhere they could seize power. Michael Foot even tried to dismantle the nuclear deterrent, aimed at The Soviet Union.

But, the majority of the British People wanted no part of Marxism. So Labour had to reinvent itself. They called it “New Labour”, epitomised by that evil lackey of Globalism, Tony Blair. That wicked man took power on a promise of a brave, new, world, but only sought to enslave the nation to his Globalist paymasters.

What did he ever achieve except to further enslave The United Kingdom to The European Union, open the floodgates of immigration and attack any other nation which the Globalists ordered him to, laying the foundations for ISIS and filling many body bags with the remains of British soldiers, who died not protecting The United Kingdom, but the Global Power Structure.

It is a wonder that half the mosques in London are not dedicated to him, for under his watch, indigenous Londoners became a minority for the first time, replaced with the adherents of a foreign Culture.

And now we have Corbyn. Jeremy Corbyn and his Marxist “Momentum” Movement. Momentum has a nice sound to it, kind of another word for Progressive. And we all know what Progressive means: Progressing ever harder Left.

Corbyn thinks that once again he can pull the wool over the eyes of the British voters. “We’re not Marxists, we just want to help the poor and disadvantaged. Make a fairer, more equal society”. Well, People know propaganda when they see it.

So, why did a Brexit vote happen? What was this division?

Of course, we know the proximate cause was the rise of UKIP. But what caused UKIP?

Quite simply, the British were being diluted out of existence. Foreign Cultures and foreign Religions were being forced into the nation at an exponentially increasing rate. Society was being changed to place importance on this new paradigm, at the expense of traditional society, what it actually meant to be British, what it meant to be proud of the heritage that created the British society.

For a while, it seemed that this change would go unnoticed. But suddenly, the British People began to wake up to the fact that there were schools where only a handful of children were white, that the most popular boy’s name for newborns was Mohammed, and that streets in a city could be blocked by thousands of kneeling worshippers, bowing toward Mecca, flaunting their de facto conquest of the land.

That is why there was a Brexit vote. The European Union was seen as the architect of this Cultural destruction.

So, NO, Corbyn, you cannot heal the divisions. Because the British People now realise your game. To destroy the nation itself and create a new Soviet. They do not want their Culture, their heritage, their society, to disappear into the night, and be replaced with the Communist-Islamist State of Britistan.

You will never succeed, because NOW, the British People know you for the danger you are. A danger clearly seen in other European nations where paramilitary thugs and tanks are used to repress the People’s desire to be free of Socialism and all its evils.

You will fail.

Anti-war campaign

First I aim to produce a leaflet on how wars are for profit and effect even non-veterans in local towns by the means of political outside forces.

Secondly I will submit an article from the veterans officer on the history of the anti-war campaign ran by Mosley at the start of WW11.

I also will be setting up a petition to stop the arm's deals that involves current political groups.

NBU will encourage members to purchase leaflets to spread our message across the UK.

New British Union office still needs your help

As members will know, the New British Union has been under constant attack since first forming in 2012. Our opponents will not stop. Nor must we.

To date they have succeeded in getting the party’s PayPal account closed, the new donorbox account shutdown, and banks presently refuse to do business with us. This has interfered with the running of the New British Union; and especially interfered with the office rental itself.

However, and despite this, on a day-to-day basis the office continues to remain a great success. It has allowed us to increase New British Union membership and literature. The office has also allowed the New British Union to store and secure far more valuable resources and property: such as computers, printers, banners, flags and posters.

To this end then the New British Union would ask its members and supporters to consider setting up a monthly debit of £10.00.

I read with interest (as always) the last issue of Blackshirt, and found it both exciting and fascinating. So many good articles there.

There was one statement and concept, however, that I disagreed with, and I thought I should express it here. I'm well aware of the Draconian anti-free speech laws that Britain and Europe are shackled with, so I won't be as blunt as I'd like to.

The notion that Fascism is revolutionary is absolutely correct. But the notion that it is somehow superior because it works within “legal” means is pure nonsense. It's nothing more than agreeing to keep ourselves trapped within the bars of the cage that's been erected by our enemies. On a local level, that can effect some modest change. On a national level, it's totally ineffective.

Mosley had over a hundred thousand members -- enough to stage a real revolution if he'd been so inclined. That means, none of this “King and Country” stuff. Or over here, none of this “President and Congress” stuff. The system(s) must GO, we must have no warm, fuzzy feelings towards them, they are indeed the Puppets of the International Zionist enemy.

A revolution must be a for-real, no-foolin’ REVOLUTION. I doubt very much that the first American revolution (there have been two) worried about being considered “legal” by the British Crown. Or that the Bolsheviks were terribly concerned with the legalities of Czarist Russia. In a revolution, you will be regarded by the System as a traitor. Get used to it, and get over it.

We may indeed love what our respective countries are supposed to stand for. But when traitorous scum have taken over those governments, as they have on both sides of the pond, then it is our duty to fight them, and I do mean FIGHT. We must recognize one basic principle first and foremost: Our Race Is Our Nation. And, the “Eight Words?” “The survival of our race is not negotiable.” Under those circumstances, and with those realizations, national borders are NOT as important as our Aryan people, world-wide.
The writer correctly points out that for any revolution to succeed, there must be a broad popular base of support. It need not be universal; in our first revolution, there were a great many who remained loyal to England, because the Crown was the “legitimate authority.” But there was a broad enough base of support to make that revolution feasible, and ultimately, successful.

There are other “key ingredients” that are absolutely vital to the “recipe,” and if one fails to recognize any of them, the attempt -- whatever it might be -- is doomed to failure before it begins. To that end, I wrote this one.

Yes, it’s geared to a new American revolution, but the basics apply across-the-board, and I’ll send it free to anyone who wants a PDF copy. Inasmuch as I’ve revived the old Thunderbolt newspaper as an e-zine (which says all the things you’re not allowed to say over there,) the address to write is, TheNewThunderbolt@gmail.com. I can write such material and send it, but bear in mind, it may be dangerous for you to receive it. A legal advisor suggests that you’re allowed to receive it but not to distribute it.

I’ve gotten a bit more hard core since the days I was writing The New Fascism: An Idea Whose Time Has Come (Lulu.com, and so much for the free plug.) I find myself somewhere between Mosley and Leese -- and leaning a bit more towards Leese than I used to. I might well be the only American who honors Guy Fawkes Day, simply because he had the right idea (even if the motives were a little screwy.)

But that, gentlemen, is the nature of revolution. Polite discussion, book-selling, pamphlet-pushing, and “demonstrations” are merely the superficial surface; without a solid foundation of genuine revolutionary commitment, such things are nearly pointless.

On a smaller scale: the Reds are always nice enough to come visit any of our activities or meetings, why not return the courtesy -- with exactly the same behavior? That, at least, would be a start.

DAFYDD LOWE - PERSONAL PROFILE

NBU WALES OFFICER

I am a Yorkshire lad born in the 1950’s and received a secondary education in Scarborough.

I left school at 16 and went to Constantine College in M’bro to study mechanical engineering. Having attained the National Certificate I went on to study the Higher National and became a member of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers.

I soon got a job in the petrochemical industry working on the design and procurement of engineering equipment. This formed the larger part of my career.

I was married for 24 years and had 3 children. In 1998 I got divorced and 10 years later took early retirement and moved to North Wales where I live now.

Although semi retired I became a bus and coach driver and still work part time.

I never had political views until the Iraq war which I thought was terrible and would never have expected to get parliamentary approval. Turned out to be worst thing ever, look at the mess. I was witnessing my home town becoming a clone of Pakistan. by 2008 I had enough, I left and will never go back. In recent years I have found myself turning further to the right, I admire strong leaders like Mussolini. I am a massive fan of Trump, Le Pen, Geert Wilders etc. If I could turn the clock back I would without question been one of Sir Oswald Mosley’s blackshirts. I have no doubt that Enoch Powell will be proved right.

I feel very pessimistic about the future of the UK, that too much damage has been done, crime is running out of control, illegal immigrants and people traffickers are exploiting the weakest in society.

I have always been in favour of corporal punishment, and the death penalty for child molesters and murderers. Biggest mistake was abolishing this.

I feel I have seen the best years when people generally did the thing that was right and had respect for law and order. Successive governments have failed us, London is now a foreign country within the UK, homeless people dying on the streets while millionaires walk past.

I am pleased to have discovered the NBU, the manifesto speaks for me and the way I feel about the way things should be. We must fight to the end and I will do what I can to help.
